

Chamber Update November 2010

The November meeting was very positive and many of those in attendance were very interested in the information supplied by members of Port Macquarie Police Force. This presentation lasted for the major part of the meeting. The Officer in attendance discussed many ideas on how to maintain security within businesses in the Camden Haven. There was a great deal to discuss and many options for security in and around the business as well as the home. Security these days is extremely important and even though a lot of chamber's regular business was put back this was something that we should look at on a regular basis as a chamber and as a business. He was also being available after the meeting to talk about individual problems.

Plans for Christmas were also on everyone's lips and we are looking forward to having Santa arrive again this year. The chamber Christmas party has been organized and will be at the North Haven Bowling Club. For further information contact Secretary Austin.

The markets this month were again an attraction for all and many community groups are taking advantage of the number of people attending. We will again have an extra market in January which will be held on Tuesday the 4th of January. This will be a special day for all concerned as all the shops in the Camden Haven will be open and from Bold Street to the River you will be able to purchase all you require for the first week after the New Years Eve festivities. So don't forget shop local and then enjoy perusing through the markets for something different.

Our discussions for television advertising have been put on hold until the New Year and we will look at the best way to spend our dollar.

At these markets keep an eye out for displays from the local fire brigade, have your blood pressure checked or just wander through the markets and take in the atmosphere and enjoy.

Once again I ask that anyone in business who is interested in the area to come and join with us at our next meeting and put forth your ideas and suggestions to encourage visitation to the Camden Haven.

Our next meeting is a combined Christmas party at the North Haven Bowling Club starting from 6.30pm for a 7 pm start the meeting will be brief but the party will be as long as you last.

The next markets are on Sunday December 19th

Come and join us and mix with others of our business community.

Yours in Business
